Native American Heritage Month

November is Native American and Alaska Native Heritage Month. We'd like to take this time to point to some very important statistics in relation to these communities as well as to highlight some activists and organizations that are working to address these issues. We stand in solidarity with Native American and Alaska Native communities in addressing the violence that continues to occur at the hands of the state and in connection to the various systems of oppression operating in the United States.

MORE THAN 4 IN 5 AMERICAN INDIAN AND ALASKA NATIVE WOMEN HAVE EXPERIENCED VIOLENCE

MORE THAN 1 IN 2 AMERICAN INDIAN AND ALASKA NATIVE WOMEN HAVE EXPERIENCED SEXUAL VIOLENCE
Alaska Native women continue to suffer the highest rate of forcible sexual assault and have reported rates of domestic violence up to 10 times higher than in the rest of the United States.

By their own account, between 2005 and 2009, U.S. attorneys declined to prosecute 67% of the Indian country matters referred to them involving sexual abuse and related matters.

Over 42 million child sexual abuse survivors live in the United States, three million of which are still minors. One in 4 girls and 1 in 6 boys experiences sexual abuse before they turn 18, and only one-third of those children disclose. Perpetrators are able to facilitate abuse because our culture keeps so many of us in the dark about what symptoms sexual abuse produces in children. Approximately 90 percent of children who are sexually abused know their abuser, and 60 percent of those children are abused by someone their family trusts. An additional 30 percent of child victims are abused by a family member. The likelihood that a child who has been sexually abused knows, trusts, or is related to his or her abuser discourages the child from telling anyone about the abuse, often increasing the severity, frequency, and duration of the abuse.

HB 321 would require school districts, community schools, and STEM schools to provide annual, age-appropriate instruction on child sexual abuse for students in kindergarten through sixth grade, and age-appropriate instruction on sexual violence for students in grades seven through twelve. The law would also require the Ohio Department of Education to offer free curricula on these topics on its website, as well as require schools to train employees and provide counseling and resources for student survivors.

Prosecutors lack discretion to charge many licensed providers with Gross Sexual Imposition violations. Instead, they may charge such offenders with Sexual Imposition, which carries a much lighter penalty. This bill seeks to prevent future charging difficulties in cases similar to that of Dr. Ryan Smith, who received 60 weekends in jail plus probation for 66 counts of 2907.06 Sexual Imposition against 22 victims ranging in age from 14 to 74.
Public Policy Update

HOUSE BILL 290 (BOGGS, GALONSKI)

SENATE BILL 162 (O'BRIEN, ANTONIO)

Removes Limits on Prosecuting & Proving Certain Sex Offenses

This bill would eliminate spousal exemptions from Rape, Sexual Battery, Unlawful Sexual Conduct with a Minor, Gross Sexual Imposition, and Importuning, as well as remove the statute of limitations for 2907.02 Rape.

HOUSE BILL 337 (GALONSKI, STEIN)

Provides Privileged Communications for Victim Advocacy Services

SENATE BILL 196 (EKLUND)

Regards Managing Information Related to Sex Crimes

Current law does not protect communications between survivors of sexual violence, human trafficking, stalking, or domestic violence and advocates providing crisis services. Ohio is one of just 14 states without privileged communications in these circumstances. This bill also clarifies mandatory reporting obligations for child abuse in the provision of crisis services, and creates an exemption from the felony reporting statute for advocates serving these survivors, as is customary in the Ohio Revised Code for privilege holders.

ADVOCATES, WE WANT TO HEAR FROM YOU!

Please consider taking our four-question survey, meant to gauge current standards as they relate to House Bill 337/Senate Bill 196, otherwise known as the "Advocate Privilege" bill. We are particularly interested in responses from advocates as well as program directors of sexual violence services programs in Ohio. Your answers will be collected and kept confidentially, but results of this survey may be shared publicly.

WEDNESDAY,
November 20, 2019
12:00 PM - 1:00 PM EST

Join us for this peer-to-peer webinar highlighting Helpline’s TGIF prevention program.
Amy Hawthorne will share information about the program, training, objectives and outcome evaluation. This is a great opportunity to learn more about a specific project at one of Ohio’s Rape Prevention Education (RPE) funded programs.

TGIF is a youth-led prevention program designed to create school environments where bullying and relational aggression is not accepted, ignored, or minimized by students and adults. Exposure to the complete TGIF program is significantly associated with lower rates of victimization, lower rates of aggression toward peers, higher total developmental asset scores, and higher internal asset scores at the conclusion of the program in comparison to the control group.

After registering, you will receive a confirmation email with information about joining the webinar.

Registration is limited to the first 100 participants.

We are also sponsoring "The Uncertain Future of Title IX", a forum by The City Club of Cleveland.

"In the last year, Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos has worked to overhaul Title IX to strengthen the due-process rights of the accused while narrowing the definition of what constitutes sexual harassment. Proponents of the changes believe it will put the rights of the accused on par with the rights of the complainant, an effort that especially protects racial or ethnic minorities who are disproportionately incarcerated at greater rates than whites. Critics argue that the regulations inappropriately favor the accused and discourage victim reporting while making it easier for schools to abdicate their responsibility.

The proposed regulations have garnered more than 100,000 public comments, making Title IX one of the most contentious rules in the department’s history. A final ruling is expected to take several months or years, leaving colleges and universities in a state of flux. What controversies pertaining to the rights of accusers and accused existed before the DeVos proposals? How are colleges and universities grappling with these proposed changes that could significantly alter what constitutes Title IX compliance?"
